About the Venice School of Human Rights:

The EIUC Venice School of Human Rights, is an educational programme born in 2010 with the goal of studying today's challenges in the field of human rights allowing its participants coming from all over the world to list these challenges and examine their reasons and possible solutions to deploy.

Sexual Violence is a prevalent feature of armed conflicts which transcends continents, countries and cultures. Universally underreported by victims on many grounds, ignored by politicians on the basis of other priorities, conflict related sexual violence has, and to a large extent still is shrouded in silence and remains one of the most pervasive human rights violation of our time.

As breaking the circle of silence is an important step in combating and ending the phenomenon, this year's Venice School proposes to critically assess the issue of sexual violence in conflict and stimulate reflection on key challenges worldwide.

Please confirm your attendance to pressoffice@eiuc.org by 9 June.
