The University and the City

Vienna, the capital of Austria, is a thriving international city, reconciling its rich historical and cultural inheritance with a dynamic approach to the modern world. As seat of numerous international organisations (UN, UNIDO, IAEA, OPEC, OSCE and FRA) and important turntable for business enterprises between East and West, Vienna is at the same time a city of opera, concert halls, theatres, museums, universities and cafés. (www.wien-tourismus.at, www.info.wien.at).

The University of Vienna (Universität Wien, www.univie.ac.at/en/) was founded in 1365 and is therefore one of the oldest universities in Europe.

The Research Centre Human Rights of the University of Vienna, in co-operation with the Ludwig Boltzmann Institute of Human Rights (BIM) coordinates all EMA activities during the second semester. BIM is an independent academic human rights research and service institution. The institute was founded in 1992 by Felix Ermacora (1923-1995), Manfred Nowak and Hannes Tretter under the umbrella of the Ludwig Boltzmann Society. It is BIM's main objective to offer a link between academic research and legal practice.
